"His early education was obtained in old Public School, No. 18. He finished his education at Ann Arbor, Michigan. Was graduated from high school. After leaving school, his father put him and his brother Edward N. on the farm near St. Joseph, Mich., thinking to give them a good start in life. He sent them a large number of peach trees with which to start their orchards, but the boys were having a good time fishing and hunting and left the tree planting for another time. When a year later their father visited the farm, instead of a thriving orchard he found the trees in the original bundles, lying on the ground. He decided that the boys were not intended for farmers and they all returned to Buffalo. Here Albert G. secured a position in the Manufacturers and Traders' Bank, which he filled for one year. He then became clerk in a leather and wool house, where he remained for some time and after becoming thorough master of the business engaged in the same line on his own account. He formed a partnership with Hartwell Bowen and 'Bowen and Hatch' did a very successful business for several years. The death of Mr. Bowen dissolved the firm, Mr. Hatch disposing of his interest. He then began dealing in real estate and for many years was one of Buffalo's energetic and successful operators. His greatest interest was perhaps in the pursuit of the study of archaeology and in the gathering of what is said to be the finest private collection in existence. He was an authority on this most valuable science that supplies the material, which neither history nor present information can furnish, concerning the relics of man and his industries, and the classification and treatment of ancient remains and records of every kind, historic and prehistoric of ancient places and customs. He devoted a great deal of his time and money to gathering his collections. In politics he was a Republican." (See Vol. 2, pp. 502, "History of Central, N. Y.")

454. Edward Walker Hatch[7], (Timothy L.[6], Timothy[5], Zephaniah[4], Benjamin[3], Jonathan[2], Thomas[1],) b. at Blandford, Mass., 31 Aug., 1818. Graduated at Medical College of Pittsfield, Mass., 1842; md. 15 Oct., 1846, Nancy C. Boies, of Blandford. At the time of his marriage, he was practicing medicine in New Jersey, and continued there for several years afterward. In 1858, he was appointed by the Legislature of Connecticut as trustee of the State Reform School at Meriden. At that time, the institution was in a depressed condition, and it was a question whether it could be sustained. He engaged in the work of its renovation with great energy and good judgment, resulting in excellent success; and in 1859, he was unanimously elected superintendent of the school, which from this time onward enjoyed remarkable prosperity. He took high rank as reformer and educator, and continued till his death in this responsible and difficult position.

In May, 1852, he made a public profession of his faith in Christ, and united with the Congregational Church, of which he was a deacon the last two years of his life. With remarkable cheerfulness and buoyancy of spirit, he constantly evinced a life of consecration to the service of the Master. Such qualities gained him a wide circle of hearty friends, and the love and respect of the community.

In the domestic circle where he was always happiest, the best and loveliest traits were exhibited. At the age of fifty-five he was called away from the field of his extensive usefulness, and died 7 Feb., 1874.

The scene of his death-bed was a fitting close of such a life. Calling his family, the officers of the Reform School, and other friends around him, he bade each farewell with affectionate parting words. He then led in repeating the Lord's Prayer, then himself repeated the hymn, "Rock of Ages" and after the pronouncing of the apostolic benediction, he fell asleep. The trustees of the institution over which he had been superintendent, gave public expression of their sorrow. A newspaper on the day of his funeral said: "Today Meriden is wrapped in grief confined to no particular class or sect. Every man, woman, and child in Meriden will miss him and regret his death."

NOTE

We are indebted to Estes Jerome[9] Hatch of Salem, Mass., for the following history of one of his ancestors. It came too late to be incorporated in its proper place on page 111, No. 86. "General James Oglethorpe of England who established settlements at Savannah and Augusta, Ga., and some of the islands on the coast under a special grant from the English crown, appointed Capt. Estes Hatch as master of one of the ships that was chartered to transport colonists and supplies from England to Georgia. Florida was under Spanish Rule at this time. The Spaniards claimed all of Georgia. War was continually brewing between the Spaniards and the colonies in Georgia; and to make some kind of settlement, General Oglethorpe detailed Capt. Estes Hatch to go to St. Augustine to have a conference with the Spanish Governor of Florida. This was in June, 17——. As Captain Hatch did not return after two months' absence, great uneasiness was felt in Georgia, but one morning about the middle of August, Capt. Hatch sailed up the river and dropped anchor off Savannah. General Oglethorpe boarded the ship being too anxious to wait until Capt. Hatch could land and tell the results from such a long conference. To the general's surprise, Captain Hatch introduced his wife, daughter of the Spanish Governor of Florida, who was Don de Marco. Her name was Vina Moro de Marco. In a publication on Anti-Slavery-"Essay on the Slavery and Commerce of Human Species," published in 1783 in Boston, Mass., reference is made to Capt. Estes Hatch being in the slave trade and landing a cargo of 112 negroes from the West coast of Africa at Savannah, Georgia, in 1751. This was probably the first cargo of slaves landed by an American ship. "Early Colonies of Ga.," published by Durant, N. Y. makes mention of Capt. Hatch being in the slave trade. He was a daring man with a powerful personality, and loved by all. His children as far as known were Estes and Gonsalvo. Both were probably b. in Ga. and came north into Mass. abt. 1790-2. Of the 2nd son we only know that he was the father of 10 children, 9 sons and 1 daughter.

Estes's brief sketch will be found on Page 227, No. 216. His son Estes of the 7th generation was not known to have been married until we obtained information from the above named correspondent in 1927.

ii. Rosannah[8], b. 26 Oct., 1823. "When she was about 42 years of age, she had her first courtship. Previous to this she had joined "The 7th Day Adventists." According to their faith she had her white robe made in which to ascend to greet the Holy Ones whom they expected to meet in the clouds. She bade "goodbye" to her parents, who were Methodists and could not be saved, and went with her fellow worshippers. However, they did not "go up," but in the sojourn she met her future husband, Samuel Tibbets.

"He was six years older than her father. Her engagement was made at their third meeting. Two weeks later her lover came to her parents' door at six o'clock in the morning, while her parents were at breakfast and said, 'Come Rosannah, come, don't keep me waiting. The day is going and I have much to do.' Rosannah left her breakfast and was soon on her way to be married."

"Her husband modified her spirit by having her wear shoes he had made, and had her dresses made short and narrow, with no lace at the neck."

After his death, she resided at China where she died, 1905.

486. John Gifford Hatch[7], (Job[6], Joseph[5], Moses[4], Moses[3], Jonathan[2], Thomas[1],) b. at Falmouth, Mass., 28 Feb., 1805. His father was captain of a whaler and went on three-year voyages and John G. was three years old before his father saw him. When he was nine years of age, he accompanied his father on one of his trips. During the voyage, they were shipwrecked in the West Indies. All were saved and the child was left with an old "darky" woman until his father could go to Boston for another ship. This single trip, regardless of the misfortune, gave John a love for the sea. When he was 17 years old, he walked from Falmouth to Boston to get a berth on a ship. His mother sent word to her brother in N. Y., and he met the boy in Boston and he was apprenticed to a shoemaker, which trade he learned and labored at for many years. He md. at Apulia, N. iii. Sarah Jane[8], b. 4 Mar., 1843; attended the Academy at N. Y. and at the age of 23 years, md. Lieutenant Adrianus Janson, 20 Aug., 1866. He was a soldier in the Civil War where he served for four and one half years. He was b. 5 Apr., 1841 in Kondekerka, Zealand, Holland. Was a carriage trimmer by trade and had difficulty in getting employment so was forced to travel a great deal. She remained with her parents until her oldest son was a year and a half old, then lived in the following towns and cities: Boston, Mass.; Cedar Falls, Iowa; Brockton, Lawrence, Charleston and Chelsea, Mass. Thence to a dugout in Pottawatomie Co., Kansas. She had never lived out in the country before so suffered with fear of centipedes, rattle-snakes and coyotes. Her husband was in Kansas City at work for some time. He came home for a few months and then left permanently. Her father had given her $55.00; and with this she bought two cows and calves. She taught a subscription school, took in sewing and raised a garden for the support of herself and family. She finally got her divorce from Mr. Janson; and six years later she md. Ludwick Miller of Ashland Co., Ohio. He was also an old soldier. Her son, now being 21 years of age, took the old home and she went with Mr. Miller to Oklahoma, into another dugout. His mind failed him, and he went to Fort Leavenworth Soldiers' Home where he died three months later, in 1901. The homestead in Oklahoma was deeded to her and she sold it and bought forty acres of land on which she had a two-roomed house built. In 1905, she md. William A. Wright. He was 65 and she 62 years of age at the time of this marriage. He was b. 19 Dec., 1840 in North Carolina near the Tennessee line on a farm. Was conscripted into the Confederate Army and served until the siege of Vicksburg; then he was paroled and sent North.

Both were hard workers. She earned prizes at the county fairs with her butter and chickens. Later they moved in to the town of Thomas, Oklahoma, where he died 13 Oct., 1922. She lived with her first husband for 18 years; the second one for 11 years; and the third for 18 years. All three were married previous to their marriage to her. Now (1925) she is living in Ottowa with her son, who has been her stay and comfort for so many years. She is 82 years of age. She has been of great assistance to the Hatch Genealogical Society, by furnishing historical and genealogical information of her kindred who have long since passed on.

487. Edwin Hatch[7], (Job[6], Joseph[5], Moses[4], Moses[3], Jonathan[2], Thomas[1],) b. at Falmouth, Mass., 17 Oct., 1808-10; md. Deborah T. Ames. He was a mariner. His family resided at Falmouth. His married life not being agreeable, he left home on a whaling trip and never returned. His family thought that death had overtaken him, until years after when he wrote to his brother, John Gifford, and his sister, Temperance H. McLane, asking them to take his son and give him an education in the schools of Mass. He told of his Spanish wife who had borne him four sons. His brother and sister being unable to grant the request, they never heard from him again.

(Copy of article in Boston Paper headed "Falmouth".) A dispatch from Washington says that material for a romance is supplied by a report recently received at the State Department from the Consul-General at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

"Thirty years ago, a Whaler touched at Ecuador and landed a silent self-contained man, who wandered into the interior of that comparatively unknown country, and settled down to a life of harmless quietude. He never registered as an American citizen at the U. S. Consulate, when in course of time such an institution came to be established, but let it be known that his name was Edwin Hatch and that he was from Falmouth, Massachusetts."

The American Consul-General, F. W. Goding, in writing to Hatch Genealogical Society in answer to the query about the foregoing article, says, "The statements made in the newspaper clipping are correct, as they are corroborated by Americans here who knew him. He was short, stout, a blond, and fine-looking and was generally respected and esteemed as a physician and a man."

He married in Tumbez, Peru, Micaela Rico who was born there. Her father's name was Juan Maria Rico, b. 1801 and d. 1847. Her mother's name was Juana Salda Triaga, b. 1811 and d. 8 July, 1904, all natives of Peru.

"Edwin became a wealthy and influential citizen there and owner of a large plantation. He lived at Santa Rosa, 75 miles from the Seaboard and was known to the natives as Dr. Edwardo Hatch. The Consul-General reports his death, 28 Jan., 1883 at the age of 75 years, leaving a widow, a native of Ecuador, and one son. Dr. Hatch will be remembered by many of Falmouth's oldest citizens." His widow, Micaela, d. 21 July, 1906.

545. David Hatch[8], (Reuben[7], Abel[6], David[5], Nathan[4], Jonathan[3], Jonathan[2], Thomas[1],) b. at Farmington, Me., 22 Jan., 1824. His boyhood, like that of most farmers' sons, was an uneventful one. On attaining his majority, he found employment with the neighboring farmers: sometimes working for the same persons for the entire season. The winter months were usually spent in the lumbering regions of northern Maine. He md. Harriet, dau. of Joseph and Ann (Hatch) Collins. (See No. 123, iv.) She was b. 8 June, 1818 at Bingham, Me. She was a fine scholar and a successful teacher prior to her marriage.

The spring following their marriage, he purchased a farm in Industry, Maine. Here they resided for 13 years, and here their four children were born. In the winter of 1863, he sold his farm to Col. James Davis of Salem and removed to the adjoining town of Stark, where they remained for three years. Returning to Industry, they settled at West's Mills, where he owned and operated the saw and shingle mill, in company with Albert Shaw. Later, he engaged in farming. His wife, who had been in feeble health for many years, died 16 Aug., 1882, at the age of 64, loved and respected by a wide circle of friends. Mr. Hatch lived the remainder of his life with his children. He was somewhat reserved in his manner, hence those most intimately acquainted with him, best appreciated his sterling character and moral worth. He loved the right and detested sham, fraud and deceit. He was a kind father, manifesting a deep solicitude for the welfare and happiness of his children, even to the close of his life. Both he and his wife were devout Christians and worthy members of the Methodist Church in Industry. He d. in New Sharon, Me., 12 Nov., 1891, aged 67 years. John L. Hatch spent his boyhood days in the then wilds, north of the city limits at the family home. When he was old enough to work, he engaged as sawyer at his brother Charles's mill which ran night and day in two twelve hour shifts. He rafted the lumber down the creeks, sometimes selling it at Pittsburg, Pa., and sometimes they went on to Cincinatti, Ohio. There were no railroads at that time and the men always walked all the way on return with the lumber proceeds in state bank bills stuffed in their pockets.

After John L. was twenty-one years of age he became ambitious to acquire a good education so he went first to the preparatory schools at Homer, N. Y., and also Randolph Military Academy and then to Alleghany College at Meadville, Pa. He completed the four year course in three years; graduated in 1860. After graduating he taught school for a number of terms. Later he became superintendent of the Corry schools which position he held for several years. At this time he met Miss Mary Ann Chapin who had come from Cleveland to teach in the grammar schools at Corry. He courted and married her.

After a time he left the schools and engaged in the lumber business but was made secretary of the school board in which position he served for some few years. During this time the largest school in the city was built and on account of his activities the school was named after him and his name inscribed in colored slates upon the roof visible all over town, and also upon the corner-stones. One street in the city also bears his name, as it ran along the line of tract of timber formerly lumbered by him.

Later in life he became interested in city politics and served a term as mayor and one as comptroller. He was affiliated with the Methodist Church; was the prime factor in the organization of the first society at Corry and went to their conference and secured the first pastor, J. W. Wilson who built the old frame church of lumber furnished by John L.

(The above sketch was furnished by a son of John L. Hatch, John T. Hatch of Corry, Pennsylvania, 1926.)
